El Mojón is an old fishing village with a superb beach, located on the border of the Costa Calida and the Costa Brava, at the tip of the Mar Menor. A short distance from El Mojon is the Las Salinas and Arenales de San Pedro del Pinatar Park, the most important wetlands in the region of Murcia. El Mojon has its own beach of fine sand and clear water. The neighbouring beaches are in small residential areas interspersed with areas of green belt. There is a watchtower on the coast, typical of the many that line the Mediterranean cost of Spain. The centre of Pilar de la Horadada just three kilometres away is a shoppers paradise with many boutiques, pastry shops, banks and gaming salons lining the main Calle Mayor.
